Creator Studio · what it supports today, and what can be added

Visual and audio effects the renderers use today, and ones that could be added.

Built in: paper and craft

Torn paper edges

Any sheet or strip can have torn edges on any side, with a lighter fibrous rim where the paper ripped.

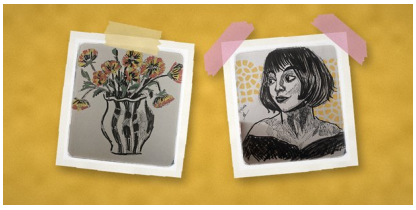

Where it's used: scene backgrounds, caption strips, hills
Ask for it: “Tear the edges of the backgrounds.”

Paper texture

Flat colour with blotchy fibres and fine grain, so nothing looks digital-flat.

Where it's used: every background and strip

Taped art prints

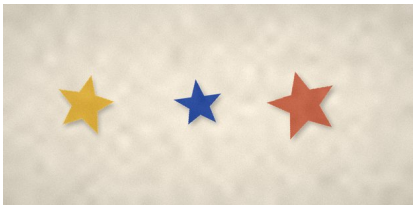

Your art printed with a scissor-cut white border, held by washi tape on top or at the corners, in any tape colour.

Where it's used: every painting in the papercut reels
Ask for it: “Tape my paintings on with pink washi tape.”

Soft drop shadows

Every piece casts a soft offset shadow, so the layers read as real paper on a desk.

Where it's used: everything in the papercut style

Paper stars and dots

Cut-paper stars and circles that pop in as accents.

Where it's used: titles and end cards
Ask for it: “Add some paper stars.”

Stop-motion boil

Each piece jitters by a pixel or two and a fraction of a degree every other frame, the signature hand-animated wobble. Strength is adjustable per piece.

Where it's used: every papercut piece
Ask for it: “Give it more stop-motion wobble.”

Built in: scene and light

Snowfall with depth

Snowflakes in near and far layers: far ones fall behind the book, near ones in front, larger and softer.

Where it's used: the flip-book reel
Ask for it: “Make it snow.”

Lamp glow, light pools and haze

Warm street-lamp glows, pools of light on the snow and haze on the horizon.

Where it's used: the flip-book night scene

Background defocus and foreground framing

The background is blurred like a shallow depth of field, with an out-of-focus tree in the foreground framing the shot.

Where it's used: the flip-book reel

Turning pages darken and brighten as they curve towards and away from the light.

Where it's used: the flip-book reel

Fade to dark

The scene dims for the ending.

Where it's used: the end of the flip-book reel
Ask for it: “Fade out at the end.”

Colours from your art

The main accent colours are pulled out of a painting and used for the swatches and paper.

Where it's used: the “it paints with your colours” scene
Ask for it: “Use the colours from this painting.”

Built in: sound

Effect	What it does
Neural voice-over	Reads your lines aloud with a local neural voice (Kokoro). The voice model has 28 English voices (US and UK, female and male); the ads use warm, upbeat and bright ones.
Timed to every cut	Each line starts as its scene lands. Lines that would overrun are sped up slightly with the pitch kept natural.
Clean tails and levels	Short fade at the end of each line, and the whole track is normalised.
Music-ready silent track	Every video also comes with a silent track, so you can add trending audio inside Instagram, TikTok or YouTube.

Not built yet (can be added on request)

Effect	What it would be
Background music bed	A music track under the voice-over, lowered automatically while it speaks.
Sound effects	Paper rustles, page flips, pops and whooshes on the matching moves.
Light leaks and lens flares	Warm film-style light washes across the frame.
Confetti and sparkles	Particle bursts on reveals and end cards.
Motion blur	Blur on fast slides and whip moves.
